A dot grid for drawing a key. The grid consists of 18 columns and 20 rows of black dots. A blue line has been drawn to form a key shape, starting from the top-left corner and extending downwards and to the right.

The blue key shape is composed of the following segments:

- A horizontal line from the 1st dot to the 10th dot in the 2nd row.
- A vertical line from the 10th dot in the 2nd row down to the 10th dot in the 16th row.
- A horizontal line from the 10th dot in the 16th row to the 12th dot in the 16th row.
- A vertical line from the 12th dot in the 16th row down to the 12th dot in the 17th row.
- A horizontal line from the 12th dot in the 17th row to the 13th dot in the 17th row.
- A vertical line from the 13th dot in the 17th row down to the 13th dot in the 18th row.
- A horizontal line from the 13th dot in the 18th row to the 14th dot in the 18th row.
- A vertical line from the 14th dot in the 18th row down to the 14th dot in the 19th row.
- A horizontal line from the 14th dot in the 19th row to the 15th dot in the 19th row.
- A vertical line from the 15th dot in the 19th row down to the 15th dot in the 20th row.
- A horizontal line from the 15th dot in the 20th row to the 16th dot in the 20th row.
- A vertical line from the 16th dot in the 20th row down to the 16th dot in the 16th row.
- A horizontal line from the 16th dot in the 16th row to the 10th dot in the 16th row.
- A horizontal line from the 10th dot in the 16th row to the 1st dot in the 16th row.
- A vertical line from the 1st dot in the 16th row up to the 1st dot in the 2nd row.

The right side of the grid (columns 11 to 18) is empty, intended for drawing a second key.
